

It's hardly more than yesterday since gentle June was here, since we'd just been acquainted with the middle of the year. It seems just like a few weeks since Independence Day, but the days and weeks have sped on flying feet, away. The fourth was gone, and soon there came, the day when Labor rests, and we were busy entertaining relatives and guests, then came the football season with a bang, and we passed up by, and now the Christmas season comes, and New Year's Day is nigh. I wonder how we've used the year, what gains we may have made, if slacker if we've done our best, or wandered a bit and played? I wonder if the coming year will find us more to do, and better days for everyone the weather's days for

Gets 15 Months To Prison For Making Liquor

Antonio Tomai Enters Plea To Helping Operate Still Near Rose Point

WAS LARGEST EVER FOUND IN COUNTY

Other Places Are Entered And Sentences Passed By Judge Hildebrand Today

Antonio Tomai of near Rose Point was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Allegheny county workhouse for 15 months following a plea of guilty to manufacturing liquor.

Tomai, who has a wife and four children, was formerly a resident of this city. He bought a farm near Rose Point, paying $50 down on it and agreeing to pay the balance in payments. Soon after he purchased the farm he said that he was approached by a man whom he knew as "Mike" on Jefferson street. Mike said, told him that he could easily pay off the balance on his farm by the operation of a still.

Tomai said that as a result of the conversation, "Mike" brought a huge still to his place. They had just begun operating it when Tomai was arrested, Mike getting away.

With the still, County Detective George Kennedy and other officers secured about 25 gallons of moonshine. The still was the largest ever confiscated in Lawrence county.

Other Sentences.

Merko Rek, for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor to which he pleaded guilty was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and costs and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of 60 days, with the opportunity of being paroled in 15 days upon the payment of the fine and costs.

Francis Anthony entered a plea to possessing liquor. He was found sitting in an automobile in an alley in New Wilmington with a jug in the car. His home is in Armstrong county but he had been in the vicinity of New Wilmington helping to operate a stilling machine. He was paroled for two years upon the payment of a fine of $200 and costs.

Rocco Augustine entered a plea to carrying concealed weapons and was fined $25 and costs. He claimed that he had gone from this city to Hillsville and having considerable money on his person had taken the gun for protection. He was arrested by Constable Edwards at Robinson's crossing street car station as he was starting for home.

Stanley Stagnovinski entered a plea to possessing a gallon of wine which he said he had secured for medicinal purposes. He was paroled for two years upon the payment of $200 and costs.

SANTA NEARLY MISSES BOAT, BUT ALL OF PARTY IS ABOARD

presto, the hoof was better and we hurried on.

Just in Time.

The Joyland was scheduled to leave Nome at just one minute after midnight, and at five minutes to midnight we were just coming through Nome. I wish you could have seen that sleigh of Santa Claus, careening around corners, cutting through signal lights and Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Vixen, Donner and Blitzen almost flying down the street.

Santa Claus was standing up almost on the dashboard cracking his whip and the Good Fairies were hanging onto each other for fear they might get thrown out.

The Brownies were yelling like little Indians, and Old Mother Hubbard and the Woman Who Lived in a Shoe looked rather frightened. Mr. and Mrs. Tautuk and Nutooth their son hardly said a word. They couldn't for the ride took their breath away. It was the first time they had ever been so far south at Nome and they were too interested in the sights of the city to think about anything else.

But there was no stopping to see sights. We were late and to help the speed of the sleigh along got out and ran alongside of it.

Down the street we went, all traffic was stopped to let us through. Half a square away from the boat we could hear it whistling and the captain shouting "all ashore that's going ashore." That meant they were getting ready to cast off the lines, take up the gangplank and start south.

Just as they were ready to lift the gangplank we came dashing around the corner and the man on the boat saw us. He waved for us to hurry but we were hurrying, as fast as we could and then Old Santa Claus showed us some expert guiding. The gangplank was only six inches wider than the sleigh, but he guided the reindeers up over that plank as adroitly as an automobile racer.

Everybody Got On.

Just as we cleared the gangplank the whistle blew, the gangplank was hauled in and the big engines started chugging their way out into the Pacific.

Everybody had reservations for the boat. Santa Claus had state-room A on deck A, a regular millionaire's room, but he deserves it. The Good Fairies had the next room to him and the Brownies next to that.

Mr. and Mrs. Nautuk and Nutooth were on Deck B and next to them Mother Hubbard and the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe. All during this trip they have been chumming together. The North Wind and Jack Frost had the same room, while the reindeer had a private stall each down in the hold of the ship.

For the first hour or two the weather was splendid. Clear and cold and not much wind. But about 3 o'clock this morning we had a terrible storm. The icy wind from the west came tearing across the deck, lashing the ship in its fury and tossing it about like a cork in a bathtub.

One of the masts was broken by the fury of the storm and we nearly had an accident that would have spoiled the trip. Santa Claus' pack was nearly blown away. It was blown out of the sleigh and was just about going over the side of the ship when three of the Brownies made a flying tackle and caught it, just in time. What an exciting minute that was.

Storm Abates.

At breakfast this morning the weather had abated again and we all had breakfast together. Santa Claus ordered wheat cakes and sausage just like he got at Martin's out at Westfield a year ago.

Old Mother Hubbard ordered ham and eggs for she said that last year when she visited Ellis Hilliard up in Volant they had ham and eggs that tasted finer than anything she had ever eaten.

After breakfast I took a walk around the deck with Jack Frost, but by the time we got back around Santa was reclining in an easy chair, telling a story to the Brownies.

Santa's Story.

It was such an interesting thing that I copied it down and here it is for you to read:

There was once a shoemaker who worked very hard and was very honest; but still he could not earn enough to live upon, and at last all he had in the world was gone except just leather enough to make one pair of shoes. This leather he saved for a long time, until one day he was nearly starved, and he was so tired that he could not get up early in the morning and start to work. In spite of being poor the shoemaker's heart was light amid all his cares; so he went to bed, left all his troubles to heaven and fell asleep.

In the morning after he had said his prayers, he set himself down to his work, when to his great astonishment, there stood the shoes already made upon the bench. The good shoemaker did not know what to think of this strange thing. He looked at the shoes and found there was not a false stitch in the two of them and all was neat and beautiful.

Early that morning a customer came in and the shoes pleased him so much he bought them and paid a high price for them and the poor shoemaker, with the money, bought enough leather to make two pairs more. In the evening he cut out the leather and went to bed early, that he might get up at 6 o'clock in the morning and start making shoes. By and bye buyers came in, looked at the handsome shoes and paid him enough money so that he could buy leather enough for four pairs of shoes. And the strange thing about the whole affair was that when he arose early that morning the shoes were again finished. He cut out the leather again and found the shoes finished in the morning as before; and so it went for some time—that was made ready in the evening was always finished by daybreak and the good shoemaker became prosperous again.

They Decide to Investigate.

One evening about Christmas time he and his wife were sitting about the fire chatting together he said to her, "I should like to sit up tonight and watch, that we may see who it is that comes and does my work for me."

The good wife said that she was burning and the shoemaker and his wife hid themselves behind a curtain in the corner of the room and watched with wideawake eyes to see what would happen.

Just as the cuckoo clock on the wall struck 12 there came onto the hearthstone two little naked dwarfs and they clambered to the shoemaker's bench, took up the work that was cut out and began to work with their hands—stitching and rapping and tapping at such a rate that the shoemaker and his wife were all amazement and could not take their eyes of the two little naked dwarfs. And so the dwarfs continued until the job was finished and the shoes stood ready for sale. This was long before daylight, and then the dwarfs scurried away as quick as an eye-wink.

The day before Christmas the wife said to the shoemaker: "Those little elves have made us rich and we ought to be thankful to them, and do something for them in return. I am quite worried to see them run about as they do; they have nothing on them at all to keep off the cold. I'll tell you what, I will make them each a shirt and a waistcoat and a pair of trousers in the bargain, and you make them each a pair of shoes."

This idea pleased the shoemaker very much and one evening when all the things were ready and the day's work had been done they laid the new shoes and clothes on the table instead of the work they used to cut out and then they hid themselves to watch what the Brownies would do. About the time that the cuckoo came out of his little house to sing the twelve times telling that it was midnight the Brownies came in and were going to sit down to their work as usual, but when they saw the clothes lying there for them they were greatly pleased. They dressed themselves in the twinkling of an eye and danced and skipped and sang as merry as could be till at last they danced out of the door over the snow and the shoemaker saw them no more, but everything went well with him from that time as long as he made shoes.

Now these little Brownies had come from the Garden of Happiness with me to help deliver Christmas presents a year before this and while they were helping a big woolly dog chased them so fast that they got away from the sleigh and the reindeer and got lost. They had an awful time until the following year when I found them and took them back with me to the Garden of Happiness.

Thirty-seven calls were reported to the sick. A motion by Mrs. Neigh to pay fifteen dollars charged to the society to wipe out the deficiency of the inter-church, was carried. Mrs. Ketter gave a splendid report of the district convention at New Wilmington on November 18-19. Mrs. E. N. Baer, Mrs. J. L. Stratton and Mrs. Neigh gave some side lights of the convention which were well received.

The chapter assigned from the study was outlined by Mrs. W. A. Stritmatter who told of the dreadful conditions existing in the lives of the Moslem woman.

P. S.—Plan to attend the New Castle High School Play next week—"A Lucky Night"

To Conduct Sunday Services In Senior High Auditorium

Nazarene Church Not Adequate To Accommodate Large Gathering At Annual Convention

On account of the large audiences which are attending the annual preachers' and young people's convention in the Church of the Nazarene, West Falls and Beaver streets, and the church not being adequate to accommodate the large gathering of delegates and local members, the auditorium of the senior high school on Lincoln avenue has been secured for conducting all of the Sunday services.

The services on Sunday morning will open with the Love Feast at 8:45. A Bible school address will be given by Rev. J. C. Albright of New Philadelphia, Pa. Dr. J. B. Chapman of Kansas City, Mo., will deliver the message at 10:45 a. m.

The sermon at the afternoon session will be given by Dr. F. M. Messenger of Chicago, Ill. Rev. Chapman will preach in the evening at 7:30. The young people will have a rally at 6:30 p. m.

At the meeting Friday evening Dr. Chapman preached a forceful sermon before a large congregation. Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Lehman of Barborton, O., sang a very inspiring duet number. Mrs. O. L. Benedum of East Liverpool sang a beautiful solo entitled "Why I Love Jesus."

The young people's session was a great success. Rev. G. Howard Rowe, pastor of the local church, was re-elected president of the district Young People's society.

At the morning session today Dr. Chapman gave an excellent address on "School of Prophecy." "Paper on Pastoral Visitation" was read by F. C. Lehman, also a paper on "District Problems and Budget" was read by Rev. O. L. Benedum. This afternoon a lecture on "Book of Revelations" was delivered by Rev. F. M. Messenger. A Home and Foreign Missionary program was carried out during the afternoon.

Dr. Chapman will preach this evening at 7:30.

The entire convention since it began on Wednesday has been one of deep interest and uplifting character. All of the sessions have been well attended and splendid prayerful spirit has prevailed. Outstanding ministers of the denomination have attended and given addresses on timely subjects.

Among the visitors who have been present include Rev. W. W. Harkes and Rev. E. C. Oney of Ashland, Ky., and Rev. John Gould of Wollaston, Mass.

Officers Jack Young and Thos. Lynch this morning happened on Martin Lee, negro, just after he had purchased two quarts of moonshine. The officers and Lee saw each other about the same time. Lee attempted to disappear but was not fleet enough to make his getaway and Lee and his two quarts were brought to the police station. The case against Lee will be decided as soon as the investigation under way has been completed.

A GREAT FEAT

IF THE custom of placing "Christmas Seals" on gift packages didn't exist it would have to be invented—just like Santa Claus and gift-giving itself. Nearly everyone has come to feel that a Christmas letter or package lacks the authentic flavor unless sealed with the gay little stickers.

It was a stroke of genius, this idea of selling for a humanitarian purpose a Christmas seal used by and within the means of all. So good is the idea that one wishes it had been conceived by an American instead of having been borrowed from Denmark twenty years ago.

"Christmas Seals" are so attractive in themselves—this year's design is fully up to the standard fixed by former years—that the social and humanitarian aspects of their annual sale need not be uppermost in the mind of the purchaser. So much do they add to the appearance of the letter and package during the Christmas season, the purchaser of the little life-giving stamps does not feel he is making a donation.

This has its virtues, especially at a time when the charitable instincts of Mr. Average Citizen are being stimulated to capacity, but it is unfortunate that the humanitarian work accomplished by the anti-tuberculosis seals should be passed over in many minds because of their intrinsic value. Every buyer of a Christmas Seal should know that the money obtained from their sale has made possible the cutting in half of the tuberculosis death rate since 1906.

"SHE TOOK HER DEFEAT LIKE A WOMAN"

GOVERNOR NELLIE TAYLOR ROSS, who recently failed of reelection as the chief executive of Wyoming, tells the New York State League of Women Voters, in session at Syracuse, that she took her defeat "like a woman." This is a new phase made necessary by the changed conditions in political life. If it was coined by the fair lady governor it will probably go down in history as a "Rossism."

Governor Ross says that she was beaten by a narrow margin, but that she has the satisfaction of knowing that no methods were used in the conduct of her campaign for which "a woman governor need blush." Could any man say more than that? Another point made by Governor Ross is worthy of thoughtful attention. After saying that she conducted her campaign on the same plane which she sought to conduct her administration, she adds: "I asked no consideration because I was a woman." If we may be permitted to use the word, this is a very manly declaration that might be taken to heart by men and women the country over.

The woman governor in her address at Syracuse not only talked good sense, but indulged in much wholesome frankness. She insisted that women, having been given the vote, cannot escape responsibility for government. She says they have the numbers and they have the power to thwart corruption in public life, and if they fail to do so they have only themselves to blame. She declares that women, like men, are often so keen for mere partisan or factional triumph that principle is obscured by the desire for personal or party advantage. She believes in party organization, but insists that it is the duty of its members to keep the party on a high level.

All of which is only another way of saying that men and women are very much alike and that if either fail to do their duty in public life we cannot expect the kind of government that was hoped for by those who founded the Republic.

UGLY THINGS

THE euphemism of the sordid is becoming wearisome. If a man is a libertine he's dubbed a "shiek." If a woman figures in a liaison with a married man she's an "affinity." If a rogue fits up a den for orgies it's a "love nest."

Calling a spade a spade in retailing ugly scandals might offend good taste, but with the limitations of decency it might be practiced with good effect. Such practice would have the merit of describing ugly things in ugly terms.

A man 70 years of age attributes his youthful look to eating no lunch. Probably he would look still younger had he never eaten breakfast and dinner, too.

The United States has 84 per cent of all the passenger automobiles and 74 per cent of all the trucks in the world. Looking at the traffic on the street we can believe it.

A London judge says that there were but two women in the world and were they separated by the Atlantic, they would find an opportunity to quarrel. Isn't that just like a man?

Friends are queer people who think you should take more exercise.

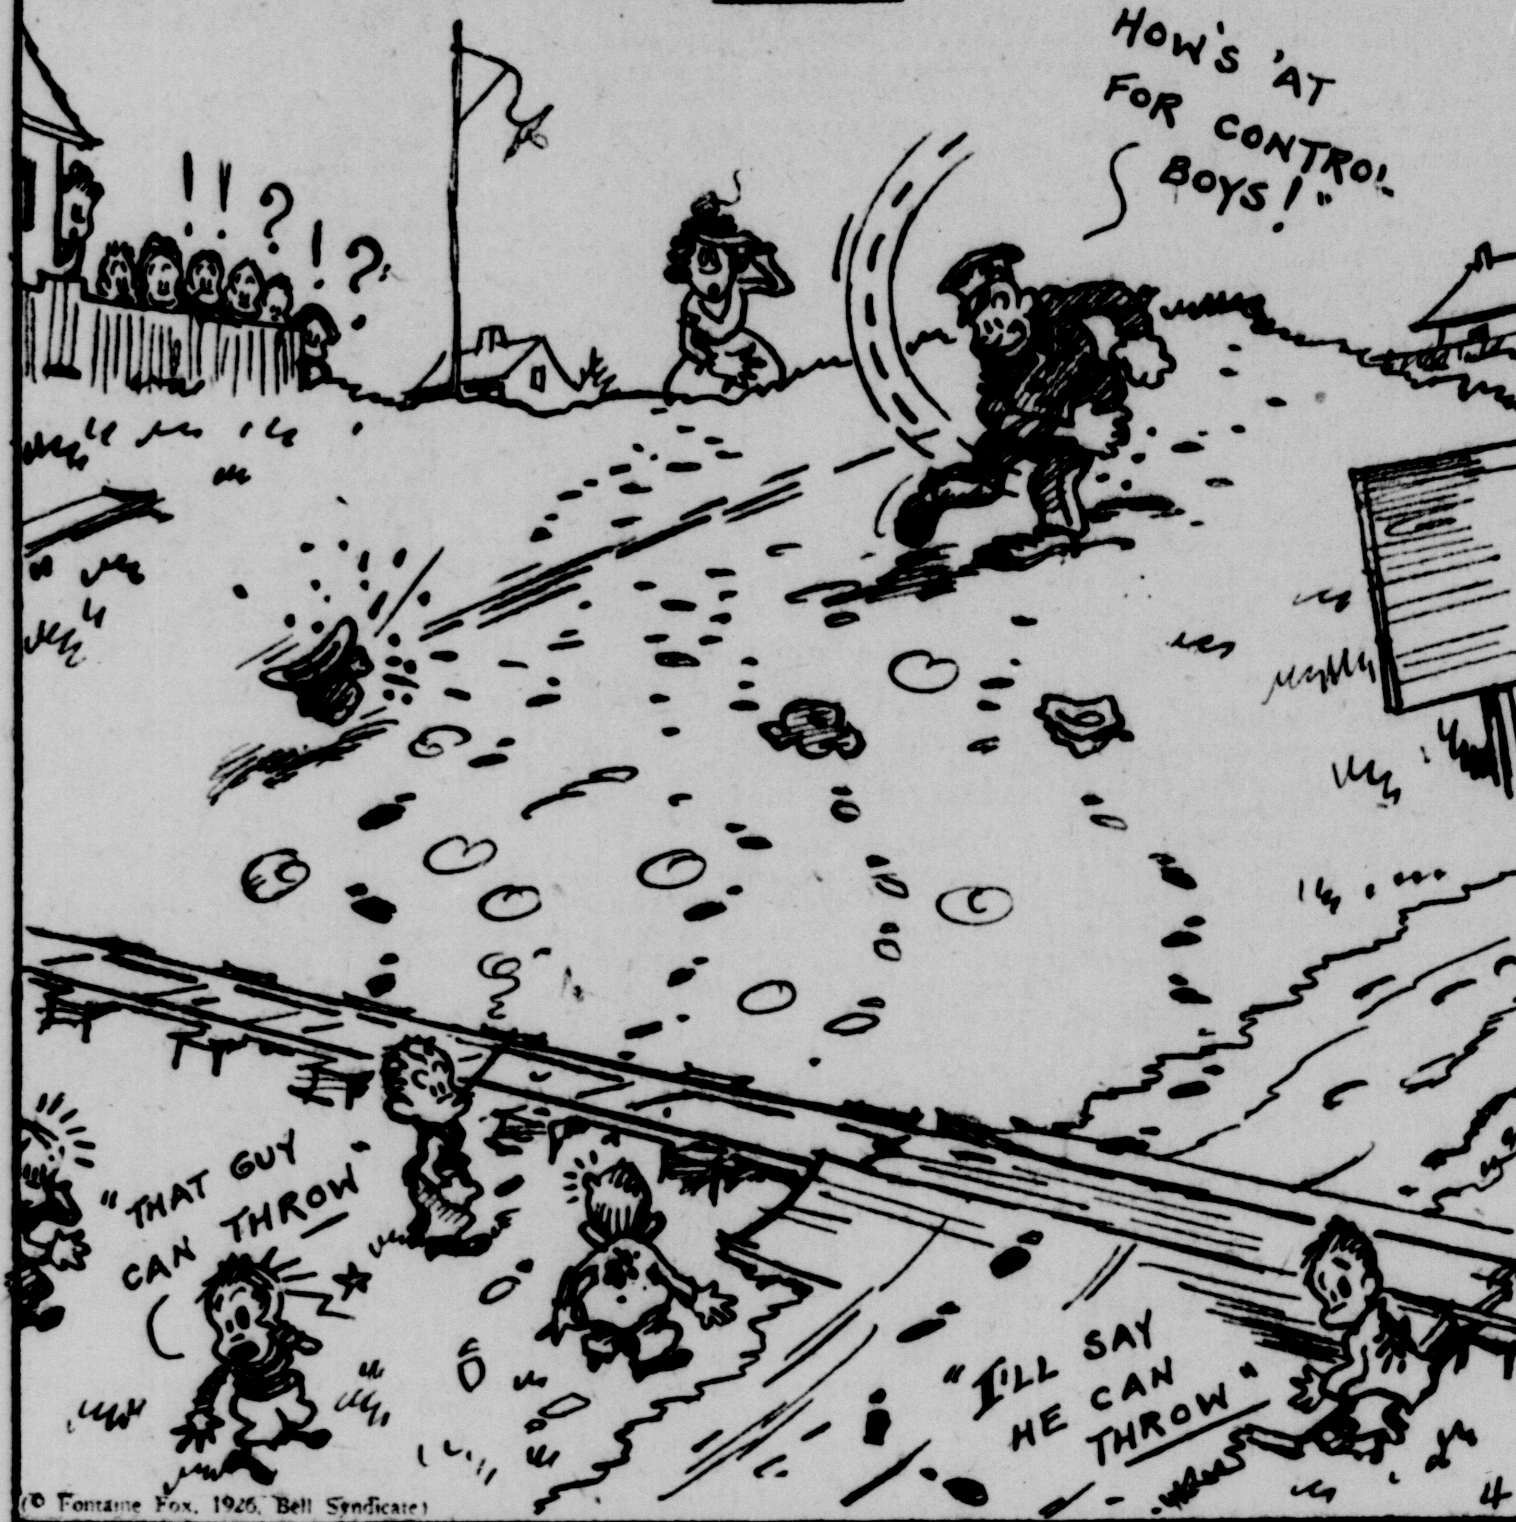

Alas! One thing you can't get vaccinated against is the itch to pass the other car.

There is a lot of Americanism in districts where they don't think a sandwich a square meal.

A new depth finding device has been lowered five miles in the Atlantic without reaching bottom. That's what we think of when they talk of establishing an airship service to Europe.

A rum ship has kidnapped two prohibition officers and is cruising about the Gulf of Mexico with them. One bad thing about being kidnapped on a rum ship is that the bootleggers might open one's throat.

Spinach is something you learn to love, like olives and boiled squash and hard faced persons with carefully concealed "good hearts", but once acquired, the spinach habit hangs on.

There is nothing to hinder people in New Castle from putting a Christmas tree in the holes in the sidewalks put there to hold the flag poles. It is being done in other cities and no doubt would create such a Christmasness. Not Xmas.

So far we have not heard from the "Arden Reader" who slammed us for protesting against the use of the term "Xmas." He classed us as ignorant and not knowing what we were talking about. There are a lot of people who would like to know where his license to use "Xmas" comes from.

The champion corn husker of the west prays before he enters a contest and he has beaten all comers so far. Doing the praying isn't going to do any harm, no matter what contest one enters. It will at least compose the mind if nothing else. Good thing to do once in a while.

Just one thing to be said in favor of dirty paper money. The dirtier it is, the faster you want to spend it and get rid of it.

Ladies in Pittsburgh are suspected of being pickpockets. This is one of the vocations of man we thought the ladies would surely pass up, but maybe it's on account of Christmas being so near and they need the change.

Women may be growing more artificial, as a critic contends, but men certainly haven't escaped the influence. Those collegiate pants that remind one of two vertical sections of water mains are about the furthest removal from Nature we can well imagine.

Testing out a kid who has "finished" his education in geography, according to the present day school system, we asked: "Where is Cairo?" only to receive the prompt and unblushing reply: "Never heard of it." An average kid he is, which makes him fairly indicative of the trend of modern "education."

A little Miss telling her friends that her mother had gone on a visit, said that she didn't have to "Bumps." It was found that she had gone to Knox, so the little one wasn't very far wrong.

Before you tell anyone that the radio has come to stay, be sure and have all the payments made on it.

After reading the above you couldn't blame a jury for doing most anything to a man. That is the kind of poetical miss Anne Caldwell, the actress, inspired John W. Hubbard, known as the shovel king, to write. The old saying of "shoemaker, stick to your last" applies here. If Mr. Hubbard had stuck to making shovels he wouldn't be defending himself in a suit for half a million dollars.

The jurors in the Hall-Mills case in New Jersey are accused of sleeping here. If they did sleep through it they are lucky. Better off than the people who have read it.

Fashion Nowadays.
Nowadays styles different. Than it even was last year. Dame Fashion rules the season. And everything is queer.

The little lad wears trousers to his ankles, if you please. While father uses knickers. That reach up to his knees.

Mom always said when she was small. She would quite hate to miss. To wear her dresses to the floor. Quite ugly and loose like this.

But Sis is different quite than that. She wears her's short and tight. Up to her knees and if you please. She says it is quite right.

Now Granny thinks it's awful. What things are coming to. And says they're horrid children. Such absurd things they do.

She wouldn't think of boyish bobs. For ladies or girls either. And evolution shocks her so. We can't tell what will please her.

But still the styles are changing. They're always in the lead. But after all is said and done. A change is what we need.

—Miss Alice Ebeling, aged 14 years, 8A5 Franklin Junior high school.

One thing about the testimony of Mrs. Hall that is hard to believe is that with all the church twitting about the pastor and his choir singer, and the whole town having their eyes on them, that she didn't know anything about it. They must raise a different brand of people over there.

A man who killed a fawn deer illegally was fined $516, and in default of the fine was given 516 days in jail. A hunter kills another illegally the coroner's jury usually turns him loose.

It is claimed that tourists are avoiding Greensburg all they can because of the many semaphores in the streets that delay them so much in their travels. One thing a city needs and should have, and that is an easy way through that will not block the city traffic or delay tourists. For that reason we need a bridge across the Neeshanock and need it badly to take care of east and west traffic.

Santa In Wall Street.
Wet and Dry News.
Elective Maternity.
If Peter Were Here.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1926, by N. Y. American, Inc.)

Santa Claus will be busy all over this prosperous nation very soon. And the poor little rich men with their headquarters in Wall street will not be forgotten. From thirty-five to fifty million dollars will be distributed in bonuses to workers. And stockholders will not be forgotten. Year-end dividends of several hundred millions will set a new record.

Farmers, with their troubles, reading about this, will wish their business in life was to watch stock tickers instead of weaning calves.

Mr. Suseman chuckled Mrs. Rosenberg under the chin, and later, in court, offered this explanation:

"I didn't have the nerve to come here this morning, so I went to get a couple of shots in me. The place I usually go to was closed and it took me the better part of an hour to find another one. I got me two shots. I guess I did go to Mrs. Rosenberg's store and maybe chuck her under the chin."

The judge said: "You have told a straightforward story," and let him go.

So far as known, the judge did not ask him where he got his "two shots" or send a policeman to find out about it. That will grieve prohibitionists.

The province of Ontario, dry for ten years, has gone wet. At that news American "wets" cheer up—but without reason.

The Canadians can change their laws, prohibition is not frozen into any constitution. But here it would take thirty-eight states to take out of the constitution the prohibition that was so blithely put in. And nobody now living will see thirty-eight states vote to remove the prohibition amendment.

Billy Sunday says he will run for president as a dry if Governor Smith, a wet, is nominated by the Democrats, and the Republicans nominate anybody but an out-and-out prohibitionist.

One thing is certain: With Mr. Sunday in the white house the United States would have four years without a dull moment.

Someone suggests selective maternity, no woman allowed to have children unless willing to give up her entire time to them and "forego society."

That is not a good idea, if what you want is good children. With the famous Olympic games didn't exactly "give up society" or devote her life to her maternal duties. And she had only one child. But that one was Alexander the Great.

Nature and the mothers have done fairly well on this earth in the past, changing us from cannibals and cave dwellers to half civilized beings.

The Leyland line and the Atlantic Transport line of commercial steamships, now owned by Americans, will soon, it is said, follow the White Star line into British ownership.

You think sometimes, for a short period, that a king, emperor or dictator might be useful even in a republic.

When Peter the Great, barely out of his teens, found that Russia had no ships, he built some, that never could travel in a lake, for practice and amusement. Then he worked as a mechanic in a Holland shipyard, according to the story. Everybody probably knew he was an emperor. But he learned how to build a fleet, as he built St. Petersburg on a swampy, cold river by will power.

Wealth, "easy money," make this country, its able men, and its government give up too easily.

We prepared three airships to fly to Hawaii, two fell down, the third wouldn't go up. We prepared two more airships for a non-stop flight to Panama. These non-stop flights promptly stopped.

We may not be "quitters," but we are something else—the man that said: "I'm a game guy, but I know when I'm licked." We seem to be "licked" a good deal of the time.

The United States government recently exhibited in New York city the most powerful searchlight ever made. Its power equals that of 2,000,000,000 candles, eighty times as much light as all the lights of New York's Broadway.

The light is so powerful that a man forty miles away could read his newspaper by it. A fine light, but it does not compare with the sun, which is ninety-three million miles away, and so powerful we cannot look at it.

The two-million candle searchlight is supposed to help us find enemy aircraft flying over our cities. What good would it do us to FIND them?

The government also employs "height-finders" to show how high up the enemy aircraft are flying, and "distorting machines" that make it possible to hear approaching airplanes more than ten miles away.

All interesting, but not very useful if airplanes attack our cities. What is needed is AIRPLANES, and that, unfortunately, is what the country has not got.

In Day's News

The U. S. Bureau of Standards, which today celebrates its 25th anniversary as a branch of the Department of Commerce, has as its active head Dr. George K. Burgess, a scientist of international note. Dr. Burgess is a native of Massachusetts and received his professional training at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, supplemented by special studies in Paris. In 1900 he returned to Massachusetts Tech as an instructor in physics and subsequently he held a similar post at the University of California. In 1903 he went to the Bureau of Standards as associate physicist, where his thorough training and extensive experience in scientific affairs won him rapid promotion. When Dr. Samuel W. Stratton resigned as director of the Bureau several years ago, it was on his earnest recommendation that Dr. Burgess was selected to succeed him.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

THE CHURCH AND SCIENCE

Dean Robbins the other day urged an alliance between the church and medicine.

It all depends on what you think religion is.

If religion is thinking right and having the right ideas about things perhaps it has nothing to do with medicine.

The way you arrive at a conviction about a matter of theology and the way you establish facts in medicine are diametrically opposed. One is an act of faith without reason and the other is a deduction of reason without faith.

But if religion, instead of occupying itself with correct thinking, occupies itself with correct doing, if it consists in being kind and helpful and bringing about civic reform, then the closer it is allied to science the better.

There has been entirely too little science in the practical part of religion. The church needs to follow economic laws in its helpful work, and science needs a sort of reverence in its pursuit of facts.

Those whose religion consists in doing the most good they can by the best means they can, cannot know too much about science. But those who insist that religion fundamentally consists in having certain opinions care very little about science and its methods.

Most of the difference between science and religion have arisen out of the definition of the two things. It all depends on how you define religion and what you think science is.

If religion be a name for the organized effort to make the world better, to relieve human ailments, and to bring as much happiness as possible to the human race, then it ought to pursue scientific methods. But if religion consists in getting through with the wicked world as soon as possible so as to achieve our bliss in another one, then science is superfluous.

Scientific men are often called irreligious. This means they care very little about opinions and a great deal about facts. But it is conceivable that a scientist might be working for the alleviation of the ills of humanity quite as much as a religiousist, and in fact a scientist who simply seeks to help his fellow men is a religious person. He is actuated by a lofty and altruistic motive.

A devout scientist, therefore, means simply one who is devoted, following the line of his fellow men, and that definition will apply very well also to many religiousists.

There is no scism in the business of helping people. It is only in judging people and reasoning about things we know nothing about that differences of opinion appear.

POEMS I LOVE

"Colors," by Faith Baldwin.

As so often happens nowadays fine poetry is frequently to be run across in our daily newspapers. I found this in a corner of the New York Sun some time ago. It should have wide circulation, it seems to me. The author lives in Brooklyn, I believe and though she is somewhat known to those who love beauty, her audience will grow apace if she keeps on giving us such chiseled verse.

Little names for colors
Sing, to heart and ear,

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

WHO SAID OR WROTE IT?

There are a great many quotations on the tongues of public speakers, editors, and writers, the authorship of which quotations is credited to Tom, Dick, and Harry, without any idea who really was the author. I have known preachers quote from the pulpit words from Shakespeare, and credit them to the Bible, and vice versa. Emerson has been generally credited with having written the following: "If you write a better book, or preach a better sermon, or build a better mousetrap than your neighbor, though you build your house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to your door." No one to my knowledge has been able to point out when and where this quotation ever appeared in Emerson's writings.

The editor of a Law Book Publishing company's monthly magazine says regarding this quotation, that "when it became very apparent that its authorship could not be ascertained, it was claimed by a very distinguished writer, who would have said it, no doubt, had he thought of it."

The same editor is now trying to discover who said that the "Law is a Jealous Mistress," because the Colorado Bar Association has selected "The Jealous Mistress" as the name for its publication, and a Colorado lawyer has very aptly asked for a citation of authority. No one seems to know to whom to credit this saying. No amount of investigation that the editor has made has enabled him to find who was the author. He guesses that if "Bacon did not say it, he should have."

Can any lawyer in New Castle help the editor? I have heard it used often enough by some New Castle attorneys; they might be able to fasten it on someone with authority.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

JUST A BABY!

Just a baby! Nothing more. Millions have been born before. But this baby strangely seems To have come with golden dreams And a miracle is wrought. She has changed our every thought.

Just a baby, but the place Seems to wear a fairer grace. Gone is all the solemn hue. Rooms and hall and stairway knew. Nothing here is quite the same. Since the day the baby came.

Laughter has a sweeter tone. Life itself has richer grown. She has changed and so have I. And this great world tramping by. Busy, heedless as before, Has been changed for evermore.

Just a baby, nothing more. Yet we tip-toe 'cross the floor. Fearful lest the sound we make Shall her time of slumber break. And within her tiny hand Lie the splendors we have planned.

Now beyond our tasks we see All that some day she may be. If with pride our faces glow She it is all made them so. What is all this boasting for? Just a baby, nothing more.

New Industry Starts In City

Metal Products Company To Begin Operations In New Castle

WM. CUMMINGS MANAGES PLANT

Another important small industry of the city is about to begin active operations, the machinery being about all installed and subjected to a trial, which insures the success of its manufacturing operations.

It is the New Castle Metal Products company of which Jonas Kaufman, one of the city's pioneer and successful manufacturers, is president, sales-manager and principal owner.

The company has been in the process of preparation for some time and the fact that it is all but ready to start making its various products, which should meet with ready demand and large sales, will be pleasing news to the people generally.

The company will add a new line of manufactured goods to the already increasing line of products that the city now boasts. It is not air registers. In addition to this, the company will manufacture numerous wire specialties, with which Mr. Kaufman is familiar, he having been the founder and successful operator of the Standard Wire Products company of this city, the successor of which is still in successful operation here. The company will also engage in all kinds of metal stamping work.

William Cummings, associated with the office of the Koppel Car company for many years, has already assumed his duties as manager of the plant of the New Castle Metal Products company. He is an expert on management and this adds to the assurance of success of the concern.

The company has a modern well equipped plant 40 by 135 feet in size on Sampson street. It has additional property on which it is already contemplated to construct needed additions in the immediate future.

The concern will employ a considerable number of people in the near future and Mr. Kaufman is optimistic of the future growth and importance of the industry.

CHARGES OF MURDER OF DR. HALL NOLLE PROSSED BY COURT

killed her. Tears came into Mrs. Hall's eyes.

Then Henry Carpenter came to her and very quietly embraced her without speaking.

Mrs. Hall was speechless.

Reporters went to her and asked her what she had to say.

"I have nothing to say," she said. "All that can be said has been said."

Then all four defendants went into a side room to pose for pictures.

Jury Out Five Hours

The acquittal was returned at 6:49 p. m., five hours and four minutes after the noted case was placed in the hands of the jury.

It was said today that the elderly jurors took but two ballots, and that the first one was ten for acquittal and two for conviction. The jurors, after it was all over, still were testy over the charges that they had been lax in their duty, that days ago they had made up their minds to free the defendants and that one or two of them had brazenly dozed during the trial.

Last night one of the jurors, John Young, a 60-year-old farmer, met Gilbert A. Van Doren, the 78-year-old owner of the Colonial Hotel, who made the first charges against the jurors and a fist fight was narrowly averted. It was at Van Doren's hotel that the jurors had been quartered.

With the famous trial over, an exodus of newspapermen, literary lights, telegraph operators and photographers has begun. The tired reporters for the most part were glad to leave, having filed approximately 12,000,000 words in the last month—the heaviest work of any news story in telegraph history, with the possible exception of the World War.

Somerville, embazoned on the front pages all over the world for weeks, and rather marvelling at what it was all about, returned to its peaceful ways, elated at the prospect of again being just plain Somerville, a quiet little town nestling in the green-topped hills of New Jersey.

Second Week Of Revival To Be Started Sunday

REV. HARRY MAITLAND

With the auditorium filled to capacity and the Sabbath school room partly filled the last revival service for this week was conducted in the Mahoning Methodist church Friday evening.

The first week of these special meetings proved very successful with large audiences, fine song services and interesting sermons preached by Rev. Harry Maitland.

On Friday evening Rev. Maitland preached on the subject "Smoked Up Christians as Counterfeits and How to Detect Them." Taking his text from the eighth chapter of Romans, "If any man have not the spirit of Jesus he is none of his."

The spirit of Jesus is the spirit of love. Taking up the things which keep the Christian light from shining, naming covetousness, selfishness, hatred, envy, malice, jealousy and tale bearing as some of the things which do. Having these things and professing to be a Christian are not in harmony.

There will be no service in the church this evening. The second week of these special meetings begins Sunday in the church. Rev. Maitland will preach morning and evening church services. The morning service will start at 10:50 and the evening service at 7:30.

The Gift that Keeps Christmas

FOR the woman who receives a Maytag Gyrafoam Washer on Christmas there begins a new kind of washday—more real, practical helpfulness than she has ever known before.

Washing, that task which formerly required long trying hours, is magically reduced, by the wonderful principle of the Gyrafoam, to a matter of minutes. A tubful of clothes clean in 3 to 7 minutes. In 60 minutes an ordinary family wash completely, immaculately finished.

It's quick! It's thorough—handrubbing even on wristbands, cuffs or collars, is unnecessary! And since it washes entirely by water action, it is every bit as careful with dainty garments as hand washing.

Take the happiness your wife or mother knows at Christmas and prolong it for her washdays—for all the years to come. Give her a Maytag—she wants that kind of a gift, that kind of help.

- 9 Outstanding Maytag Features
- 1 Washes faster.
 - 2 Washes cleaner.
 - 3 Largest hourly capacity in the world.
 - 4 Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.
 - 5 Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rot, swell, split or corrode.
 - 6 Easily adjusted to your height.
 - 7 Clothes can be put in or taken out with the washer running.
 - 8 Tub cleans itself.
 - 9 All metal wringer. Self-adjusting. Instant tension release.

Gives Charming Interpretation Of Part In Comedy

Some New Players To Be Seen In Cast For "The Lucky Break" Next Week

ELEANORE HUTCHISON

Eleanor Hutchison as the talented singer frustrated in her own ambitions but ambitious for her daughter, playing in "A Lucky Break," gives a charming interpretation of Martha Mullett, general manager of the Matusquam hotel which is the scene of the school play to be given at Senior High School December 8 and 9. In fact, Eleanor is so charming that we couldn't blame the multi-millionaire if he had fallen in love with the mother before he met the daughter.

Among the new members of the cast is Charles Knobloch, known in the school as a youth of imposing stature with a taste for literature and a sense of humor which occasionally does not coincide with that of the teacher, he steps behind the scenes and one of those miracles of the stage occurs. Charles emerges an affable business man, confidential adviser to a millionaire, a man of the world who radiates success and spells New York from head to toe.

Under Mr. Irvine's direction the school orchestra is preparing a musical setting for the play which is a treat in itself.

The overture from "Mademoiselle Modiste," one of the most popular of Victor Herbert's works, received such favorable comment on its performance at the Scottish Rite Cathedral this week in connection with the lecture of Captain O'Hay, that it is being repeated on the high school program. The strains of "Kiss Me Again" are familiar to every lover of music though he may not recognize them under that saccharine title. Victor Herbert is one of the best loved of American composers. A big, genial, open-hearted son of Ireland, he is remembered by many of the older generation as a conductor of the Pittsburgh orchestra in the days when that organization flourished.

Another composer whose life belongs to the history of western Pennsylvania is represented on the program by Stephen Collins Foster, whose beautiful song, "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," will be sung by a mixed glee club of thirty-two students in the music department.

A second orchestral number of unfailing popular appeal is "Wein, Wein, und Gesang," which rivals the "Beautiful Blue Danube" in the favor of those who enjoy the Strauss waltzes—and who does not? The fire and life of dance music appeal to youth, and the entire program for the new school play brings back the spirit of youth to those who may no longer care to count the years since their own school days.

Taken to the police station, Ziderowicz was about to be booked on a liquor charge when an investigation disclosed that he was not drunk and was suffering from a broken leg, but could not make the arresting patrolman understand his plight.

The man assured the police he was an abstainer and he was released.

International Sunday School Lesson

Notes On Lesson By

George M. Landis, Pastor First Baptist Church, New Castle

December 12, 1926.

THE BOY SAMUEL

I Sam. 8:1-10, 15-19.

Golden Text: "Speak Lord; for thy servant heareth." (I Sam. 3:9.)

Samuel was the last of the judges. In addition he was a prophet and a priest, although his prophetic office was the more conspicuous. Following the decline of the priesthood under Eli, the prophetic office becomes the more prominent. During the period of Samuel's lifetime, the nation became unified and the monarchy was established under Saul.

The first three chapters of the book should be studied in connection with this lesson, which is a wonderful treatise on the religious training of children. Every child's worker and parent should carefully examine these chapters. Our thoughts will center around the call of Samuel.

I. A CHILD PREPARED TO HEAR GOD'S VOICE (chaps. 1-2).

While no prescribed system of child training will absolutely assure desired results, it will greatly increase their probability. Samuel's preparation was:

1. By heredity. His parents were Godly people. His mother prayed for a son, and when he was born she recognized him as a gift from God, as is indicated by the name "Samuel," which means "asked of God" (1:20, 27). While grace is not inherited, the child of Godly parents is much more likely to become a Christian. Too often children are regarded as a burden and a nuisance rather than an heritage from the Lord (Psa. 127:3).

2. By dedication (1:11, 28). Recognizing that a son would be a gift from God, Hannah solemnly dedicated Samuel to the Lord, even before he was born. There would be little danger of parents making idols of their children if they followed Hannah's example. Many will surrender everything else to God except their children. It meant a sacrifice to Hannah, but the spiritual compensations were abundant. Suppose God calls your child into the ministry or to the foreign mission field, will you give up that child? It will be much easier if you give the child to God before His call comes.

3. By environment. Hannah surrounded her child with those things which were calculated to minimize his temptations and maximize his opportunities to become acquainted with God. It is a blessed privilege for a child to dwell in the house of God. While Hannah's example cannot be literally followed in this age, yet every home can be made a sanctuary, where, around the "family altar" the sacrifices of praise and thanksgiving (Heb. 13:15, 1 Pet. 2:5) are offered up to God. The church services, the Sunday school and the prayer meeting are a much better environment for the child than the movies, the Sunday excursion, the card party and the dance hall.

4. By definite religious instruction. In the tabernacle, Samuel, in the formative and impressionable years of his life, learned of the things of God. Our children will spend approximately 70 years in this world and an eternity in the world to come. Yet we often give them 40 to 50 hours of instruction each week in worldly wisdom, and about half an hour of instruction each week in the things of God and of the world to come. And if we neglect to send them to Sunday school, they do not get even that meager fragment. Little wonder that they follow the things of the world rather than the things of God. Parents, remember that some day you must give an account for the manner in which you reared your children.

II. A CHILD PERPLEXED AT HEARING GOD'S VOICE (vs. 1:9).

Because of spiritual decline, the revelations from God were infrequent in the days of Eli, and consequently were very precious to the people of God (vs. 1). Indignant Eli was in no condition to receive messages from Jehovah so God now speaks to the boy Samuel, who was probably about 12 years of age.

As is common with those of older years, Samuel did not recognize the voice of God, thinking it was Eli that called him. However, Samuel acted upon the light he had, and came to the man who should have been able to tell him at once that God had spoken. But Eli's perception was evidently dulled, and it was not until Samuel came the third time that Eli concluded that the voice of God was calling him. What a great service a spiritually minded believer can be to young Christians in assisting them to interpret the voice of God, as that voice comes to them in the Scriptures, in Providential circumstances, in inner impressions, and in the challenge of great needs.

III. A CHILD'S RECEPTION TO GOD'S VOICE (vs. 10).

That God speaks to children is clearly established by this incident. Very often we underestimate the capacity which children have for hearing God's voice. The devil does not wait until they are adults to speak to them. Many hear and heed the seductive voice of evil long before they are 12 years of age. If a child has received the proper preparation, as Samuel had, it is not hard for them to say, "Speak Lord, for thy servant heareth." The number of conversions occurring about the 12th year are more numerous than at any other age in life. Parents and teachers should be alive to their opportunity and responsibility in this matter, and should make it easy for the child to hear the voice of God. Many a child has been driven away from God and had his soul irreparably injured by the unemphatic attitude of his elders when he came to them for aid in obedience to God's call. The "Johnny's too young to understand" attitude has started many a boy on the road to hell.

IV. A CHILD'S RESPONSIBILITY UPON HEARING GOD'S VOICE (vs. 15-19).

Privilege and opportunity always involve responsibility. Samuel had received a message from God. Like many messages from God, it was not easy to deliver it to those for whom it was intended. How many people of older years would have flinched and wavered under the test to which Samuel was put when Eli demanded to know the message. It would have been an easy thing for Samuel to have "tuned down" the message, to have taken off some of its sharp edges. But Samuel was an obedient prophet and faithfully delivered the message which God had given to him, though it took great courage to do so, knowing the grief that it would bring to the aged priest whom he dearly loved.

Eli's resignation upon hearing the message is most commendable. But the punishment of his parental laxity is most tragic and should be a warning to all parents. Because Samuel had proved himself faithful, he grew in favor with God, and received additional messages. He became one of the outstanding figures in the Old Testament. God honored all the words of Samuel, letting none of them fall to the ground. Just so God will bless the words of every faithful preacher and teacher of His Word in this day, when so many are rejecting the Holy Scriptures and are following the living voices of all forms of false philosophies and religious cults.

Getting Doheny's Admission He Made $100,000 Loan Into Record; Big Interests Hope Mexican Troubles Are Exaggerated; Maine Victory's Result in Senate.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press and New Castle News
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Just how much the Government scored in getting into the Fall-Doheny trial record E. L. Doheny's admission that he made the $100,000 loan to ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall which preceded the Elk Hill oil transfer from which Doheny estimated he would make $100,000,000.00 profit is problematical.

The defense had expected to introduce this same information, but in its own good time. Defense Attorney Hogan of Doheny's counsel had meant to bring it into the case at a moment when he could make it appear that Fall, wounded by enemies, had no option but to conceal a fact in no way creditable to himself, as a matter of loyalty to Doheny, his old-time friend. The prosecution managed to get it in instead at a time when the loan and the Elk Hill's transfer are linked in a way to imply a connection between the two.

Maybe it was only a technical legal victory for the prosecution and maybe it will prove to change the story's whole plot. It makes a difference, of course, how stories are told. One way the villain may be made to appear as the hero. The other way the hero can be made to look as villainous as you please.

Prosecution and defense fought hard enough over the issue, at any rate, to suggest that they both considered it highly important.

The Washington administration's news of a big revolt in Mexico against President Calles' rule is taken in disinterested quarters with the grain of salt incidental to knowledge that the administration doesn't like Calles and probably gives revolt reports all the weight they deserve and more, too.

Big interests with Latin American connections—excepting those which would profit by North American intervention in Mexico—sincerely hope the rumors are exaggerated or altogether untrue.

Not that there is much sympathy with Calles, who is considered altogether too radical for conservative enterprises' good health, but meddling by the United States with politics anywhere south of the Rio Grande is recognized as calculated to stir up resentment the entire distance from Texas to Cape Horn.

Traders with stakes in Brazil, the Argentine, Chile and the other South American republics don't fancy the idea of having them jeopardized in behalf of oil producers and land owners in Mexico.

Arthur R. Gould's victory in the Maine senatorial election theoretically gives the Republicans control of the Upper House of the 70th Congress.

But—Forty-eight Republican Senators, forty-seven Democrats and one farmer-Laborer, even with Vice President Dawes casting the deciding vote on ties, don't mean Republican control in actual practice.

It's a Republican paper majority but how about Senators LaFollette, Blaine, Frazier, Brookhart, Norris and Nye, insurgents? To say nothing of several others who are only a little less unmanageable.

True, the "organization" is moving heaven and earth to get life insurance group back into line, at least nominally. The circumstance that overtures have even been made to Senator Shipstead, the farmer-Laborer, hints at the seriousness of the "regulars' emergency.

The insurgent group is not Democratic, to be sure, but neither, by any stretch of the imagination, can it be considered Republican, as orthodox Washington defines Republicanism.

The essence of the situation is that the 70th Senate will not be anything definitely from any standpoint. It will be completely jammed up.

Men Entertain Tuesday Kensington

Elaborate Banquet Event Friday
Evening At Y. W. C. A. Dining Room

A red letter event has occurred in the history of the Tuesday Kensington to be added to the record of the club as one of the most successful social affairs ever enjoyed by the members and their husbands together.

It was the annual banquet held by the honorary members of the club as a courtesy to their wives with D. S. Williams, J. Q. Roberts and Frank M. Jones as a committee in charge.

Under the excellent supervision of Mrs. Sarah Hikok an elaborate chicken dinner was served the club in the private dining room of the Y. W. C. A., where the beautifully arranged tables featured the excellent menu served. Baby mums were effectively used in decoration.

The only special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sheffer of Beaufort, formerly members of the club.

Following the banquet the evening was spent in social stunts. Music and games in charge of the entertainment committee, C. L. Hughes, N. L. Gardner and Dr. E. E. Snyder and it is unnecessary to say of the side splitting games pulled off were of the most laughable character.

The doctor came prepared for any emergency and with splints, bandages etc. and was ready for first aid. In some of the unique contests prizes were won by Mrs. Geo. M. Landis, Mrs. Roy Hughes and Frank Haydon and genuine wit marked the addresses of Mrs. R. C. Fralick, Mrs. Geo. M. Landis, Mrs. Frank Haydon, J. Q. Roberts and the doctor and after a vote of thanks from the ladies to their husbands and Mrs. Hikok for the splendid hospitality from the Y. W. C. A. the club adjourned.

ACTRESS GETS BRIEF RESPITE IN BALM SUIT

Case Will Be Continued On Monday
—Action Of Actress Under Fire

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4.—Granted a brief respite from a grueling three days' session on the stand in Federal court here in her suit for $500,000 heart balm from John W. Hubbard, millionaire Pittsburgh clubman, Miss Anne Caldwell, New York actress today took advantage of a one day recess to prepare herself for the defense's expected attack upon her conduct during the time she alleges she was engaged to Hubbard; and her relations with him before that time.

The actress, alternately in tears and engaged in verbal combat with Roddy Marshall, defense counsel, drew capacity crowds here for three days while she detailed a story of asserted intimacies with the millionaire shovel manufacturer. Standing room was at a premium while his impassioned love letters were read into the records.

Alleges Forced Intimacies
Miss Caldwell alleges that Hubbard forced intimacies with her under promise of marriage, and that he broke his engagement with her after she made a trip to California to enter the movies.

Indications were today that the defense would attempt to prove indiscretions on Miss Caldwell's part during her stay in California, and also establish evidence that she was intimate with Hubbard prior to the date of their engagement.

The name of Norman Del Geddes, widely known in theatrical circles, yesterday joined those of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and prominent Pittsburgh, New York and Atlantic City clubmen on the list of those who have been mentioned in testimony during the suit.

The defense intimated that it would again refer to the fact that Del Geddes, who designed the scenery for "The Miracle," in which Miss Caldwell appeared, was a passenger on the same train with the plaintiff during her trip to California.

Atterbury, a member of the Du Pont family and others socially prominent, were mentioned as having attended affairs with Hubbard and Miss Caldwell.

Indications were that no more love letters would be read in open court when the trial is resumed on Monday. It was anticipated that defense counsel would concentrate upon Miss Caldwell's past history and the introduction of character witnesses for Hubbard.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Wednesday, December 1, the electrical class of the school, under C. E. Baer, the teacher of this department, took a trip to the electric home on Highland avenue with Robert Gilliam in charge.

Upon arriving at the home, the class first went to the cellar, beginning in this way to "work from the bottom up." The wiring of the cellar was fully explained while here, and proved interesting to all of the class. One of the most interesting facts discovered here was that there were two meters, one for the lights and fire places and one for the electric range. The reason for this is that the power taken for the range is given at half price. It requires 220 volts and 60 ampere service.

Although there is a three-wire service in this home, no wires are seen as they are run through pipes to their destination. This system is called a flexible conduct, and is for protection to the house as it takes an experienced person to run a line from or across the pipes and prevent poor connections that will sooner or later result in fires.

One the first floor are four rooms. In the kitchen the electric range may be connected by the continuation of the main line, using the three-phase system. The reason for having the three-phase system, or three-wire connection, is that anything requiring 220 volts must have these and that is what is required in the range.

On the second floor are two bathrooms and four ordinary rooms, also a clothes closet. The bathrooms are heated by electrical contrivances.

In all there are over 85 lamps and over 100 outlets or receptacles for heaters, reading lamps, etc. It was said that the house was built at a cost of $33,000.

By Mike Kulich.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT
Several departments of the high school in their relation to the library have been explained by students in the pages of the New Castle News.

One of the most interesting divisions of the history department is that of ancient history, because it includes so much information that is the basis of our literature, art and music, as well as an introduction to all modern history.

Miss Mary Reed, one of the teachers of ancient history, realizing the possibilities of the library in her work, has given some reading assignments that are very practical and interesting. At the first of the semester every student is given a special topic which he is required to cover, then his report is made when the class reaches that period in the course. Each student makes a bibliography of the material available on his topic as the first step in his work, then reads systematically from his outline.

The student is more interested in his work as a result of this intensive study of one period, and has a greater appreciation of the significance of ancient history. While this is a sophomore subject it is taken up by a number of juniors and seniors who, having had other courses in history, are able to see how modern history is a development of the past. Honor students in the course have the privilege of criticizing the notebooks of other students and checking them to make sure that they are kept up-to-date. This keeps all students alert to make a good showing.

Students who will report in class this week are as follows: Martha Muse, Alice Patterson, Marietta Price—topic, Julius Caesar; James Metzler, Floyd Rice, Ethel Reed, Augusta Pittler—topic, Cato the Younger; Irene Shaffer, Robert Rose, Charles Perry—topic, Cicero; Charles Rodgers, Russell Stritz, Eleanor Stewart, Edna Shaffer—topic, Anthony; Edward Smith, Earl Turk, Marian Van Dyke, Ella Simon—topic, Augustus; Harry Stritz, Martha Beadel, Eleanor Smith, Eloise Cole—topic, Battle of Teutoburg.

VALUABLE DONATION

Regarding as valuable and interesting a donation has been made to the science department of the senior high school consisting of several samples of by-products of asbestos as it is gotten in the rock form. This collection was donated by the Johns Manville company and is very welcome into this department, as no such a collection was had here before. In all there is around 100 specimens, ranging from the ordinary asbestos paper and cloth to tiles, paints, enamels, table tops, etc.

This donation was made following a picture given in the high school auditorium Friday for the benefit of the science classes dealing with the making and uses of asbestos.

Southwest Ships Large Quantities Of Mistletoe As Santa Claus Aid

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch
To New Castle News.
AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 4. — Mistletoe season is at hand once more. The mistletoe area of the southwest, which, roughly speaking, forms a circle some 600 miles in circumference about Austin, has begun shipping great quantities of the festive parasite to northern and eastern cities to supply the demands of holiday markets.

In the southwest, the shrub blossoms in early October, and the white berries are ripe by or shortly before December 1.

Although there are some 80 varieties of mistletoe in America, while the southwest is its principal home it is found also in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and occasionally on the Atlantic coast.

Generally speaking, however, the northern limits for mistletoe in the United States are New Jersey, Southern Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and Eastern Oklahoma, according to Dr. C. C. Buchholz, professor of botany at the University of Texas, and nationally known authority on parasitic plants.

Dr. Buchholz says that the spread of mistletoe through a given area is generally considered to be due to the bird life of that vicinity. Wherever mistletoe grows abundantly, birds also are likely to be found in plenty. The white berries, which contain the seeds of the mistletoe, are covered with a sticky pulp. The birds eat the berries and subsequently distribute the seeds to other trees, frequently through their efforts to wipe the adhesive pulp from their beaks.

This sticky substance, in turn, pastes the seeds to the tree limbs, where they remain throughout the winter, and germinate the following spring. If the seed happens to have been pasted in a wound in the tree bark, or to have been situated where root suckers might readily be sent into soft sap wood, there appears, in due time, a sprig of mistletoe.

Climate agreeable, mistletoe once started is hard to check. If its branches be broken off, new branches, fully as hardy, will appear next season. If the sprig be scraped to the very limb, new sprigs will crop out in several places along the branch.

So plentifully does mistletoe grow about Austin, where it is but rarely checked by cold weather, that it is looked on as a pest. When once thoroughly implanted in a tree, it is likely eventually to suck the very life from that tree. Back in 1910 the plant became such a menace to the trees of Texas that a government investigation was made.

Farther north, in Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri, where mistletoe is no real menace to the trees, where winter winds shake the tops of the tallest oaks and elms and defy any undue spread of the life-sucking shrub, people have occasion only to think of mistletoe

Health Complaints Numerous In State

Thousand Investigated During Past Five Months Says State Department

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—Approximately 1,000 formal complaints relative to health in the state have been received and investigated in the past five months, according to a report made by D. V. Ness, chief nuisance officer in the State Department of Health.

During the same period 40,000 property inspections were made by the health department's full time health officers, this being a part of the routine sanitary survey work. "The living conditions of the average individual, both rural and urban have followed the increased standards" a statement from the department said. "The average householder is more alive today than ever before to the necessity of individual property sanitation. This statement is based not only upon the sanitary requirements but on the appearance as well. "Some years ago it was necessary for the department to institute many legal actions to bring about satisfactory corrections of nuisance complaints. The fact that verbal instructions and orders now are effective in the vast majority of cases indicates further that the public is becoming more susceptible to suggestions from the health department on matters which directly affect the health of the people."

Paige-Jewett forecast the New Year's fashion

THE very lines of the new Paige-Jewett Sedans stamp them style leaders of the season. But their charm goes far beyond the graceful contours of their body lines. Smartness is written indelibly everywhere.

Beautifully clustered instruments glow in reflected light. Mohair upholstery covers deep nested springs. There are comfortable arm rests and silken toggle grips—skillfully inlaid walnut-finish panels—solid walnut steering wheel—twin smoking sets. The whole interior breathes an air of custom-exclusiveness never before found in a car so moderate-ately priced. Two-tone color combinations enhance the exterior lines.

And all of this style and charm is yours in addition to an even finer chassis. The larger, more powerful, speedier motors are equipped with an air cleaner, high pressure lubrication, silent chain timing, and bronze-backed bearings. Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel brakes give maximum safety always.

We will gladly show you—and permit you to drive—one of these Style Sedans or any one of the fourteen charming body types and color combinations in this year's Paige-Jewett line. Come in soon.

Chaplin And Wife Lapse Into Silence

Attorneys Announce No Agreement On Separation Has Been Reached

(International News Service) LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—"No, we have not reached any decision," this was the statement made today by attorneys for Charles Chaplin, film comedian, and his wife, the former Lita Grey, following a conference to discuss the recent separation of Chaplin and his wife. It is thought improbable that a reconciliation between Chaplin and his wife can be effected, according to friends of both. Meanwhile Mrs. Chaplin has relapsed into silence and her husband is equally reticent. Chaplin intimated, however, that he would fight for the custody of his two children. Mrs. Chaplin, according to one source, is seeking a property settlement. The amount mentioned was said to be a million dollars. Chaplin is reported to be willing to consider a proposition.

HE'S LIKE JOHN PAUL JONES Not The One Who Fought, But The One Who Ran

MICKEY Walker's defeat of Tiger Flowers and capture of the middleweight crown after 10 furious rounds of fighting last night in Chicago will prove a boon to the fight game, which shows signs of going stale owing to lack of titular battles. Mickey formerly held the welterweight title, but lost it to Pete Latzo. He went to the mountains and trained like a trojan. Last night he entered the ring as the contender for the middleweight championship and scored knockdowns in the first and ninth rounds. He was given the decision by Referee Benny Yanger.

Suddenly Braham stepped through the crowd of chairs and attracted Eakin's attention. They held their heads close together, which gave a wag in the rear of the room the chance to say: "I see they are using the huddle system".

Nash is the FIRST—and as yet the ONLY—great automobile manufacturer with a 7-bearing crankshaft motor—the ultra modern type—in every model.

Nothing could emphasize more forcibly Nash leadership in motor car value than this undeniable proof of its leadership in engineering.

For, of course, the old-type 3 or 4 bearing crankshaft can't compete in smoothness and quietness with the ultra modern 7-bearing crankshaft.

There are 17 Nash models with a price range from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. factory.

CIVIC CLUBS BANQUET HIGH FOOTBALL TEAM

"Andy" Kerr Is Main Speaker

Spirit Of Enthusiasm Prevails As Business Men And Gridders Dine

Famous Grid Coach Delivers Stirring Talk; 250 Eat Turkey Dinner

By "BUGS" WALTHER

Stressing five necessary essentials in the make-up of every young American boy, whether he be football player or "cake-eater", Andy Kerr, head coach at W. & J., held some 250 grid enthusiasts spellbound and tense with interest last evening as he unfolded a common sense talk that carried with it plenty of weight and exactness.

The occasion was the annual testimonial dinner tendered the New Castle high school football team and members of the band by the three service clubs of the city—Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions. The banquet was served in the First Christian church. It would be putting it in mild terms to say that the banquet was a success. Good will and a spirit of companionship permeated to every nook and corner of the spacious dining hall as the older men, business executives and merchants gathered with the boys to partake of a delicious turkey outlay that as one speaker said "was fit for a king".

The testimonial and tribute paid the New Castle high team and the coaching staff last evening will live long in the memory of those present. The meeting was all football, the boys talked football, and in fact every phase of the meeting and dinner touched on the popular grid pastime. It was hardly the proper place for the "cream-puff" boys of today. The tried and true fighting gridiron warriors intermingled with the visaged men of the community presented a picturesque scene.

Love as "Toastmaster"

With the elaborate dinner menu consisting of turkey and all the necessary side-dishes that go to make up a very palatable combination safely tucked away, the meeting was turned over to James K. Love, president of the New Castle school board, who acted in the capacity of toastmaster, and "Jim" as he said he wished to be called, handled the job of introducing each speaker in a manner that stamped him as a second Chauncey Denev, or some other famous "toaster".

Harry Robinson, retiring captain of the New Castle high team, was the first speaker on the program. Robinson delivered a stirring talk in which he thanked the clubs for the fine dinner, and also expressed his appreciation to the football team for the wonderful support given him this year.

Captain-elect Jack Christman was next called on and responded with a well delivered talk that carried with it many of the points stressed by Robinson. Christman said that he was grateful for the honor bestowed upon him by his teammates in electing him as captain and promised that he would give his best for the sake of the school and the team next year. Christman is a mighty good football player but he ranks also with the best when it comes to oratory display.

Robert Sherer, representing the "scrubs", gave a fine talk revealing to the gathering the hardships endured by the substitute material. Sherer unfolded a few of the side-lights relative to the life of the boys who warm the bench and his talk was well received. Sherer proved adept at oratorical eloquence.

Jack Houston, treasurer of the New Castle high band, gave a short talk on the "band boys" and their part in the grid game. "Music hath charm to soothe the wild beast," but it failed to soothe Schenley and Denev," said Houston. The speaker said that he was grateful for the honor bestowed upon the members of the band in being invited to share with the gridders the excellent dinner.

Ovation For Bridenbaugh.

Following a fine introductory talk by Mr. Love in which he lauded Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh as one of the best high school football coaches in the country, the popular grid teacher at the local institution responded amid a tremendous ovation with a well directed talk concerning the possibilities of the Red and Black for next year and of the hardships encountered this year. Bridenbaugh is just as good a talker as he is a football coach and his message to the gathering was a forceful one, in which he paid all due respect to the football team, and to the townspeople for their excellent support of the game. Coach Bridenbaugh revealed that New Castle would play a schedule next year on which few "easy teams" would be found.

Kerr Principal Speaker

"Andy" Kerr, the grand-old man of football as Mr. Love expressed it, in his introductory talk, responded to the "Toast" with as forceful a talk as any football team or group of men ever listened to. Kerr, a former Dickinson College graduate, assistant to "Pop" Warner at Pitt, and Leland-Stanford, and at present Head Coach at W. & J. knows football from the first word to the last, and he gave the local high gridders a message that carried home to them the exact meaning of the game.

As a story teller the popular college grid mentor ranked with the best on the program. His many humorous deviations kept the gathering in a spirit of laughter. Kerr paid a high tribute to Coach Bridenbaugh and the New Castle High team, and also the New Castle High band, saying that it was the first time in his life that he had attended a football banquet where the music makers shared the same honors as the gridders.

Kerr urged the three civic clubs to continue with the spirit of companionship with the boys and also urged them to continue their support of athletics. "The athlete of today," said Kerr, "will be the business man of tomorrow." During the course of his talk Kerr paid a high tribute to William "Bill" Amos, W. & J. fullback and the struggle that he had for a college education.

There should not be any hatred on the football field, you boys naturally go out to win the game, play hard and play fast but never lose yourself always be friends with enemy. Off the football field there should be a spirit of friendship among the various teams.

Kerr cited figures to show that an estimated population of 15,000,000 fans had paid to see college grid games this fall, and that a total of over $30,000,000 had been received as revenue. The figures go to show that the game is becoming more and more popular.

"Go to college, get an education and stick to it," were the exact words of the grim faced coach. Kerr said that competition in the business world is growing keener each year, and for that reason they need college trained men for the positions. "Every good football player has the chance to go away to school," said Kerr. He urged the boys to grasp the golden opportunity.

As a climax to his splendid talk Kerr cited five important essentials that go to make up a football team or an upright young American citizen to wit:—Courage, obedience, loyalty, team-work and self-control. "Copy these five things in life and you can't go wrong," Kerr told of many incidents that have cropped out during his coaching experience and especially at Leland-Stanford where he aided one of the greatest football coaches in the country "Pop" Warner.

The meeting was adjourned following the talk by Kerr, and it was a happy-go-lucky throng that filed out of the banquet hall, expressing themselves as satisfied that they had spent three pleasant hours.

Louis B. Round As Chairman

Created for the success of the testimonial is due in many places, and the men are deserving of the well wishes of the boys who were guests last evening. Louis B. Round acted as general chairman of the event and "Louie" in his customary fashion was busier than a bee in a clover field attending to the many wants of the guests.

The following committees from the three civic clubs aided in the banquet:—Rotary Louis B. Round, chairman, Dr. Clyde C. Green, B. H. Kannenberg and Frank L. Orth; Kiwanis Club: James K. Love, Rev. C. J. Williamson, and Bart Richards; Lion's Club: Ben Johnson, Ed Connolly and H. Leach.

Rev. C. J. Williamson, pastor of the Highland U. P. church delivered the invocation prior to the start of the dinner. During the course of the evening ten piece orchestra rendered several pleasing numbers.

The football men and members of the band received engraved invitations to the dinner, and they will be retained as souvenirs.

The A. C. T. class of the First Christian church served the dinner in a most delightful manner.

GAMENESS IN SPORTS

BY FEG MURRAY

TERRENCE PREECE PLAYED A FULL GAME OF POLO WITH HIS LEG FRACTURED IN THREE PLACES

Amos Alonzo Stagg, in a recent article in a weekly periodical, tells about Vonabalde Gammon, a star of the 1896 and '97 Georgia teams. He had been hurt in the Georgia Virginia game of October 30, 1897, and, as he was being led off the field by Coach McCarthy, the Georgia captain came up without knowing how badly Gammon had been injured, and said to him, "You aren't going to quit, are you, Von?"

"I've got too much Georgia grit for that," young Gammon answered; then turned and fell unconscious, and died that night!

Modern examples of the courage shown by the Spartan boy, who concealed the fact that a fox which he held hidden under his tunic was gnawing at his vitals, until he fell dead, are common in every line of sports where physical injuries occur. Babe Ruth, George Burns, and many other baseball stars have played the game, and played well, when they ought to have been in the hospital. Every move was agony, but how they did move! The expression "Give till it hurts" is as good in sports as it was during the war.

Hundreds of instances could be related of how players concealed serious injuries from coach and team-mates, so that they would not be taken out of the conflict. Adam Walsh's play with broken bones in both hands is only one of many cases in point. "Big Bill" Edwards, in his "Football Days," tells about Gary Cochran, the Princeton captain, who broke his right shoulder-blade in the 1907 Yale game. What do you think he did, quit the game? He merely had his left shoulder bandaged so as to conceal the true location of his injury from the Yale players, and played on until they had to carry him off.

The Penn State captain, whose hands and face were badly burned vals to run up the somewhat larger total of 37 points the rude manner in which it treated these pitiful attempts to win more than overbalances those tallies.

Through a schedule that included Pittsburgh, W. and J., and Rutgers Lafayette rolled up a grand total of 330 points. This stands as the record for the year among the leading colleges at least.

It was but a passing play in the Army-Navy game and perhaps lost by most folk in the excitement of the game, with its dashing play, its color, the mammoth crowd and brilliant setting. But I'll remember for some time the little battle between brothers that was staged—and went into history—almost in the batting of an eyelash.

Shapley of the Navy scored the final touchdown of the game and the one which, with the goal converted after it, gave the Midshipment a tie instead of a defeat. He scored on a forward pass from Hamilton.

Arthur Born, guard on the Navy team, had broken through the Army line and as Shapley received the pass was ready to give him interference.

One man stood between Shapley and the goal line. That man was Charley Born, brother of the Navy guard.

It was up to "Art" to put his brother out of the play, and clear the field for that touchdown and give his team a fighting chance to tie the score. And upon brother Charley's shoulders rested the responsibility of stopping that dash—and saving the game.

The play by account of the game simply tells that Shapley, receiving the pass, ran eight yards to a touchdown. But in the few seconds that dash took Art and Charley fought out their own battle. "Art" won. Charley watched his chance, then hurled himself at Shapley but Art stepped in front of him and blocked him neatly. As Charley rolled over and over Shapley sped across the goal line.

HEAVIEST TRAFFIC. (International News Service.) CUNNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 4.—Frequent traffic over the Connells-ville division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in November was the heaviest in the division's history, railroad officials announced today. The month saw 167,000 cars handled. Coal made up a large part of the shipments.

PIND LOST HUNTER. GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—Lost in the mountains of Laurel Ridge, above Ligonier all night and suffering from exposure, Don Armbrust, 20 years old, of Armbrust, was found yesterday by a search party.

Armbrust was deer hunting when he lost his way, he said.

PROBABLY MORE EXAMPLES OF PLUCK AND GRIT ARE TO BE FOUND IN FOOTBALL THAN IN ANY OTHER SPORT.

by the explosion of a lamp in one of the study halls a week before the Pittsburgh game, was a hero, even though his team lost. In spite of blistered and scarred face and hands, he played a whale of a game, and proved himself one of the gamest men in the history of American football.

And so it goes in every sport. Pluck, the competitive spirit, courage, the instinct to carry on in spite of hurts—whatever you want to call it, it's seen on the gridirons, diamonds, links, rings, and playing fields of the world every day in the year.

Feg Murray Says—

A partial list of penalties inflicted in any pro ice-hockey game reads something like this:

"Johnson, 2.00 (tripping); Dinmore, 2.00 (roughing); Phillips, 5.00 (fighting); Cook, 2.00 (slashing); Boucher, 5.00 (fighting)."

They ought to call it I-Socky.

Union High Will Have Basketball Team This Winter

Union High school will have their first basketball team this year. Having always been up in the world in football for class B high school teams, the school has decided to take a crack at basketball under Coach Burnham.

With a team that looks fine for their first three practices, Coach Burnham expects to give some of their rival schools some competition that will equal, if not surpass, that on the gridiron during the past season.

The following is a list of the boys who are out for the team so far, and the positions they hope to fill: F. Morzek, forward; W. Kellar, forward; C. Hoffmeister, center; L. Gibson, guard; J. Crispy, guard; E. Hughes, center; W. Schiek, forward; R. Funkhouser, guard; F. Rech, guard; L. Carr, forward; and C. Eckles, forward.

N. Y. STOCKS

By W. S. COUSINS

International News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Speculative interest was largely centered on Baldwin locomotive and other high-priced industrial stocks in view of the reports that Arthur Cutten and his Chicago associates had locked horns with the professionals in Wall Street and had carried off first honors in the speculative coup which had been a thirty-day mystery in the financial district.

Baldwin opened at 162, unchanged, after the stock advanced in heavy trading to 164 and fell back to 159, at which price trading was quite animated.

As a group, the motor stocks displayed conspicuous strength and activity from the start. General Motors sold above 146 in active trading, while Hudson reached a new high for the movement at 49 1/2, and Chrysler, Studebaker and Hupp sold fractionally higher.

The advance in motor and industrial stock prices was checked near the end of the first hour by a huge wave of profit taking and short selling, which passed over the whole market and was particularly severe with the high-priced issues which had led the advance earlier in the week. The underlying strength of the market was shown in the fact that the motor stocks were absorbed.

Continuing the vigorous rally which has been in progress for about a week, the motor stocks advanced 4 points to the year's highest price of 146 1/2 in active trading today. The up movement of the stock to 146 1/2, only fractionally below the highest price of the year.

In the afternoon the market presented a more active tone at the close. The motor stocks gave a good account of themselves in the final transactions. The Baldwin locomotive was freely offered in the final period and the stock dropped 10 points from the high of 164 to 154. At its closing price of 154 1/2, Baldwin registered a net loss of 7 1/2 points.

Admiral Robison May Take Stand In Oil Scandal

Accuse Secretary Wilbur With Gaggling Important Witness

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Interest in the new Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial today centered around J. K. Robison, one of the defense's key witnesses.

Wilbur is under subpoena to produce the very documents containing the information Robison was expected to reveal. He may appear today.

The retired admiral was counted on to describe a long conference he held with E. L. Doheny, the millionaire oil magnate, in December, 1921, in which he claims to have persuaded Doheny to contract to build a huge oil storage plant in Hawaii because of a confidential report the navy had received to the effect Japan was mobilizing secretly to attack Hawaii and the Philippines.

Robison, however, entered court under specific order not to talk about that report.

Wilbur likewise is expected to refuse to produce it on the ground its official revelation would injure international relations. Defense counsel are highly indignant, pointing out that were it someone else than the secretary of the navy, they would immediately cite him for contempt for withholding information.

Barford Revokes State Licenses

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—Thirteen of the 26 fraternal insurance societies which were cited for hearings before Einar Barford, state insurance commissioner, during November, were without Pennsylvania licenses today. Barford ordered their licenses revoked. Some were allowed to write insurance, but for limited amounts.

Included in the list of 13 is the Modern Woodmen of America, the largest organization cited for a hearing. The organization has headquarters in Rock Island, Ill., and a membership of 1,141,000 throughout the United States.

Commissioner Barford said the Modern Woodmen license was revoked "for the reason that the organization showed only 55 per cent solvency."

Review Of Stock Market Activities Of Past Week

By W. S. COUSINS

I. N. S. Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The forward price movement in industrial stocks, stimulated by the decline in the price of cotton, and the gradual easing up of the money markets, was resumed on a broad scale this week. A number of important groups of stocks, not heretofore active, were brought into the limelight simultaneously with the reports and announcements of special developments in various companies. Professionalism and pools received considerable encouragement from the failure of the bears to depress prices on their "drives" and concluded that the technical position of stocks was stronger than had been generally believed.

A decline in cotton prices to a new low level for the season in some of the late options; a brisk advance in the French franc to about 3.84 cents to the franc, bringing incidental complications in French trade and French speculation; a rally in rubber prices, following the announcement of formation of a $10,000,000 pool to stabilize the crude rubber market; an unexpectedly large decline in steel mill operations and automobile production; and an extremely favorable dividend record for railroad and industrial companies, as evidenced by the declaration of new or increased dividends, were the chief features of the week.

The note of conservatism sounded by a number of prominent business and industrial leaders on the eve of the entrance of a new business year is practically the same as in the final months of 1924 and 1925. The lessons of the 1921 inflation period have not been forgotten and there is a country-wide aversion to assuming a load which cannot be conveniently carried. That is the reason the industrial and business leaders are steeped in conservatism at this time.

Tightening of the money market in the early part of the week was incidental to the preparation for the monthly December settlements, but the call rate moved down to 4 1/2 per cent as soon as the strain had passed. Interest and dividend disbursement to security holders this month will aggregate $340,000,000, a good part of which will find its way back to the investment markets in one channel or another. Bankers look for no permanent firming up of the money markets as a whole.

Rallies in stock prices made the most progress in the high priced industrial and specialty stocks, the traction stocks, a few of the oils, the "dividend" rails and the equipments. Copper stocks received the benefit of an active and firm market for the red metal, as well as the increasing of common stock dividends on a few of the well known shares. While the bulk of the trading in the industrials was attributed to the professionals, the commission houses reported a moderate increase of participation from the outside public, particularly in the low priced industrial issues.

The various commodity "indexes" published during the week disclosed few important changes in commodity prices during November. Declines in building contracts of between 14 and 25 per cent in the centers of population were in line with expectations, and may be expected to continue. That the cotton problem is acute is seen by the fresh decline in spot cotton and futures prices and definite action by governmental and bank interests should be taken without delay.

Organized Drys Open Drive To Plug "Leaks"

Anti-Saloon League Announces Program For Coming Session Of Congress

THREE ISSUES UP FOR ENACTMENT

Doubt Ability To Enact Dry Program At Short Session

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Despite widespread defeats at the November elections, the organized drys today opened a drive to plug all legislative leaks in the national prohibition law.

Calling on congressional dry leaders to wage an active campaign for the strengthening of prohibition enforcement, the anti-saloon league announced its legislative program for the coming session of congress. The program will include, enactment of:

1. The Andrews prohibition reorganization bill, already passed by the house but pending in the senate, to create separate prohibition and customs bureaus in the treasury department while placing dry agents under the civil service.

2. The Goff-Graham bill to strengthen the government's control over cereal beverages, and denatured alcohol, by endorsing all international liquor treaties and by punishing counterfeiters of prohibition permits. It is pending in both house and senate.

3. Reconfirmation of all customs laws.

4. A bill making retired army and navy officers available for appointment as prohibition officials without loss of their retired pay.

Wets Are Active
The congressional wet bloc meanwhile will have but one legislative program—to defeat each of the above bills. The senatorial wet bloc will hold a meeting in the near future to devise a campaign of action to insure the success of their defeatist program.

The drys, however, warned of the wet desires, will seek to enact their legislation early in the coming session. This plan was the basis of an appeal made to dry leaders by Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon league.

"I hope congress can see its way clear to bring these bills to a vote early in the session so as to avoid the possibility of a filibuster later on when it is more difficult to get action," Wheeler wrote dry leaders.

"The Anti-Saloon league and other dry forces generally will make an active campaign for the adoption of this legislation in the short session."

Although the drys lost referenda in New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada, their leaders will face the coming session certain of an overwhelming control of the legislative situation. In fact, they will maintain the same control throughout the 70th congress. As an example of their strength, there will be 73 drys and 23 wets in the new senate with 331 drys out of a total membership of 435 in the next house.

Leff and Silverman To Provide Newsies' Dinner

Fourth Annual Dinner To Newsboys Will Be Provided New Year's Day

Approximately Five Hundred Boys And Girls Guests At Last Dinner

Saul Leff and Alex Silverman, former newsboys, now owners of a chain of hotels, among them being the Leslie of this city, will again invite the newsboys of New Castle to be their guests on New Year's day, according to Leff today.

Last year almost 500 boys and girls who also peddle papers were guests at a dinner at the Leslie which included everything that a hungry boy with a big appetite enjoys. Turkey, chicken, roast beef, roast veal, potatoes, served several ways, with the rest of the edibles was on the bill of fare.

The coming event, which will be looked forward to by the newsboys of the city, will be the fourth annual dinner and it is expected that after the boys appease their appetite they will be guests at a vaudeville performance.

In connection with the dinner, the officials of the Carnegie Steel company have always extended the free use of the Auditorium to the boys and have aided in distributing boxes of candy and packages of ice cream.

Plans for the dinner and events to follow will be mapped out by a committee to be appointed by Leff and Silverman. Last year Mr. Leff was confined to a hospital as the result of injuries and the boys wished him early recovery.

Both he and Mr. Silverman will be present at the dinner this New Year's day and will help the boys make merry. They know the life of a newsboy as they sold papers during blizzards, rainstorms and swimming. Hence their interest in the newsboys wherever they operate hotels.

English Visitor To Make Address At Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—Kenneth Lindsay of London, who is making a tour of the United States under the auspices of the League for Industrial Democracy which has headquarters in New York city will speak to the members of the Y. M. C. A. at Westminster college either Tuesday or Wednesday evening of next week. The definite time will not be known until Monday.

Mr. Lindsay, while still a young man, has had a varied career. He served in the great war from 1916 until 1919. He was wounded and on his return to England founded "Eighty League," an organization of ex-soldiers to work for peace and industrial democracy in post-war England.

The years 1919 and 1922 he spent as a student at Oxford. He was co-founder of the Oxford University Labor club, first labor president of the Oxford Union and a football "blue." He visited America in 1922-'23 with the Oxford Union debating team.

He is a candidate for the English Parliament.

Foster's Weather Prognostication

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A storm wave of moderate intensity is expected to cross the continent during the week centering on December 6; moderately severe cold waves are expected to precede and follow this storm center and moderate warm waves to travel with the storm center; this will cause first ten days of December to average little below normal temperatures generally over the continent excepting sections five and six, where about to a little above normal temperatures are expected to be the average of this ten-day period. Extremes of temperature, precipitation and storm force for the month of December are expected to average much more moderate than for the month of November, 1926. Principal precipitation for the first ten days of December will be expected to occur on central and northern Pacific slope, in gulf states and east half of great central valleys; amount of precipitation will be moderate, averaging below normal.

The Foster Thesis
The outermost planet in our solar system, Neptune, was found by the effects it had on Uranus. Uranus is so far from the sun that it is not visible to the naked eye from the earth, and Neptune is immensely beyond Uranus, yet the latter is pulled out of its orbit to such a considerable distance by Neptune that the then young Leverrier, by a mathematical calculation based on these facts, was able to point out the spot in outer space where a new and unknown planet would be found. Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, Venus and Mercury are many times less distant from the earth than Neptune is from Uranus, and when one of these planets approaches the earth the latter is pulled thousands of miles out of its orbit. Can you conceive how this could occur without affecting the earth's atmosphere, and therefore our weather? Our moon is very unsteady in its orbit, varying in or out every time a planet approaches our earth, and from planetary causes its orbit is constantly changing. Mercury is pulled thousands of miles out of its orbit whenever it nears the earth or any other planet. Herein are indisputable evidence of planetary effects on the earth and on each other.

Why is it that all scientists do not see that such effects must effect our weather and atmosphere? Apply any treatise that has been offered, that will explain these natural laws, and you must include effects upon local atmosphere as a part of the result. Could we possess complete records of local atmospheric changes of sufficient length to cover a complete cycle of the movements of the bodies of our solar system, relative to the sun and to each other, we would find that each complete solar cycle causes a complete repetition of earth weather. However, it will be many generations hence before our records of atmospheric changes will be of sufficient length to reduce forecasting to a science. The same relative positions and movements of all bodies of our solar system would produce the same weather; similar positions and movements, similar weather.

Economic Waste Being Eliminated

Speaker Tells Of Results In Convention Of Standard Parts Association

Through the co-operation of the United States department of commerce and the wholesale and retail dealers and manufacturers much of the lost motion and economic waste heretofore present in American business is being eliminated.

On the side of the manufacturers and dealers, organized into the National Standard Parts association and the other side the government men and between them the finest kind of co-operation and mutual help.

The National Standard Parts association was organized some years ago and the Johnson Bronze company was one of the charter members. Delegates from the local plant attended the annual convention held in Chicago in November.

Retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers, relying for their business existence upon the economical distribution of their products must unite for the elimination of waste motion in the marketing of their products of the nation. This was the message given the National Standard Parts association in Chicago by Alvin E. Dodd, manager of the Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in an address before the organization.

"Enormous progress in the war on waste in business has been made in the fields of manufacturing, production and transportation under the guidance of Secretary Hoover," he said. The next great step in this direction must be in the field of marketing or distribution. Elimination of waste in materials and motion in our production and distribution system is imperative for the economic progress of the United States.

Wastes in distribution are as obvious as the wastes in production. Overselling, cancellations and returns, delivery delays and the like are sources of waste of materials and labor. Such wasteful practices must be dealt with by business collectively if they are to be eliminated. Production must know the capacity of its markets if surpluses of commodities are to be avoided. Distribution must be able to accurately gauge this capacity.
